

John Milner

John Milner's 40 year career in IT and telecoms has encompassed senior project management and board level technical director roles in both private and public sectors.

From 2002 to 2007 he was Management Information Services Director at the University of Cambridge where he worked closely with the Librarian and Archivists and University Computing Service to develop the University's first formal Information Strategy. He is currently leading a HEFCE funded project to assess the feasibility of a shared service to manage research data across the UK.